

Karl Robinson M.D.

“Homeopathy-Isopathy”

Dr. Robinson has been practicing homeopathy for over 35 years and has studied around the world. He received his B.A. from Yale University and his M.D. from Hahnemann Medical College in Philadelphia. After completing a residency in internal medicine, he studied homeopathy at the National Center for Homeopathy and at the Royal Homeopathic Hospital in London. He has studied extensively over the years with leading homeopaths from Greece, Germany, Belgium, Holland, England, South America, Canada and India.

Dr. Robinson teaches and writes about homeopathy and maintains medical practices in Houston and Albuquerque. He is the former editor of the American Journal of Homeopathy, published by the American Institute of Homeopathy. He is the founder and president of the New Mexico School of Classical Homeopathy and founder, along with Melvyn Smith M.D., and past president of the Texas Society of Homeopathy. He has been teaching homeopathy in San Salvador and Guatemala for the last 15 years. He has spoken at conferences at the American Institute of Homeopathy, the Joint American Conference, the Academy of Veterinary Homeopaths and at many annual conferences of the Texas Society of Homeopathy. His latest book is “Small Doses, Big Results, How Homeopathic Medicine Offers Hope in Chronic Disease.” It is available from the author or on Amazon.com. His website is HomeopathyYes.com.

“Homeopathy-Isopathy”

Homeopathy, using the most similar medicine, often alleviates, sometimes cures. When well selected medicines fail to help or help only partially, using isopathic preparations can unblock the case enabling the homeopathic medicine to act more effectively. Isopathy refers to the potentization of the identical substance which can be from a drug, a virus, a bacterium, a heavy metal, etc. As modern illnesses, such as autism, cancer and the so-called “auto-immune” diseases proliferate, they usually require more than one medicine to move the patient towards recovery. Dr. Robinson will present cases from his own practice as well as others to illustrate this multi-faceted approach. Some new information from Indian homeopaths will also be presented.
