

Texas Society of Homeopathy 2016 26th Annual Conference presents:

"Back to the Source

Hahnemann as a foundation for the method of case analysis in daily practice"

By Dr. Joseph Kellerstein DC ND FCAH

Students and practitioners alike are today offered a profusion of attractive approaches to the problems of the clinic. The purpose of this seminar is to provide an immersive experience in the method of Hahnemann, which will be immediately useful in the clinic. Study of the Organon will provide a clear theoretical foundation while the active and collaborative study of cured cases will exemplify the process and develop the skill sets needed. In the course of this study we will be discussing repertory, materia medica and differential materia medica. Useful tips on the subject of questioning skills, as well as case management will be touched upon.

Learning Objectives

1. Identification of symptoms and their components.
2. Creation of a totality of the case.
3. Creation of an essential totality or genius of the case.
4. Aphorism 153 and understanding Case analysis
5. Dynamic vs Hygienic components
6. Work flow in Studying foundational Materia Medica
7. Repertory work-rubric selection.
8. Differential Materia Medica
9. Developing the faculty of comparison through case work.

Topics

1. Organon.

Discussion of Aphorisms 1-7, 18. The basis of Homeopathic thought.

Discussion of Aphorisms 151-153. The definition of Case analysis.

Important mindsets in approaching symptomatology.

2. Case Analysis Immersion.

Using cases from personal practice published in peer reviewed journal Naturopathic Doctor News and Review as well as cases from the literature by the masters, including Boeninghausen, Lippe, Nash, Boger, and Kent, we will demonstrate the logic flow outlined in the Organon in order to arrive at a Simillimum;

- a. identifying symptoms
- b. creating totality
- c. isolating a genius to the case.
- d. creating a repertorial representation
- e. Materia Medica search
